PATIENT'S NAME:

ERICSSON, JONATHAN

Dear Dr. Plagens:

As you know, Jon Ericsson has returned to the United States. I evaluated him for the middle finger open fracture, which was operated on by Dr. Samuel last spring. Of course, you have been kept apprised of the contact I have had with Jon Ericsson via FaceTime on the iPad while he was on summer break in Sweden.

On Wednesday, September 10, 2014, he was evaluated. X-rays reveal solid union. His examination reveals 90 degrees of flexion at the metacarpophalangeal joint and proximal interphalangeal joint. The distal interphalangeal joint now has increased his motion, about which he is admittedly surprised and has noted over the last two weeks.

The patient does note improvement and is able to handle his stick; however, neither he nor I feel that he is 100%. I explained to him, as I explained to him last spring when he injured himself, that it could take 9 to 14 months for the best outcome. In my opinion, with the injury that he had, he is certainly doing rather well.

I had a discussion with Piet Van Zant, the trainer, who suggested some additional therapies, including alternative measures to remodel scar. I have no problem with that and welcome anything that would help him to feel that he is improving.

The plan will be to reevaluate him in the interim. I have released him to full duty. He is a very hard worker and a good patient. He has done everything that we have asked of him in rehab.

Yours sincerely,

RICHARD M. SINGER, M.D.
